

ARCHITECT'S PLAN FOR DEFEATED TOWNHOUSES

Unanimous Denial for Woodstock Estates

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK
Adding bulldozer-watching to crocus-watching will not be in the cards this spring at Woodstock Estates.

By a unanimous vote Thursday night, the local Zoning Board of Appeals denied variances to the Estates that would have permitted grandiose building plans there.

Registering "no" votes against Estates' owner Paul Mundt's request to construct a complex of townhouse apartments and a motel on his present swim and tennis club premises were Appeals Board chairman Robert Cross and members Sandra Day, Wayne Underhill and Hans Schrader. Jean Miller, the remaining member of the board, was not present for the voting.

Mundt, whose property is now located partially within the residential zone, had appeared before the board Feb. 25, flanked by two attorneys and designer-architect Herman Sands, to urge approval of two variances. On his property, only short blocks from Woodstock's central Village Green, he proposed constructing 124 townhouse apartments and a 48-unit motel, both adjoined by ample parking lots.

Mundt ran into strenuous objections from a capacity audience at the initial hearing. Zoning enforcement officer H. L. Martin maintained that the "configuration of the land" at the Estates did "not lend itself to the buildings" proposed; insisted the map submitted by the architect "could not be accepted as an official zoning map" and "should be certified by a licensed surveyor."

Some local residents went so far as to accuse Mundt of being "greedy," desirous of "destroying history and art," and intent on "impoverishing the environment."

In taking its official stand in denying the variances, the Appeals Board noted only that a letter would be sent to the Estate, notifying Mundt of the board's negative decision and advising him of the reasons involved.

While the specific reasons were withheld until Mundt himself had been apprised of them, individual board members had earlier shown concern over failure by the Estates to contact the Ulster County Department of Health regarding the project, the problems posed by the laundry utilities in the many apartments involved, the actual design of the complex which placed motel and restaurant on that part of the property already zoned commercial, possible sewerage and road maintenance problems and the traffic hazards posed for the Village of Woodstock by the

South Viets Rush More Troops to Northern Front

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese rushed reinforcements to the northern front today as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command announced 20 American fighter-bombers attacked a new North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site Thursday in the Laotian panhandle, one mile north-west of the DMZ.

Artillery duels were reported across the DMZ, and U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese had moved long-range artillery into the northern half of the six-mile-wide zone for the first time.

The U.S. Command said enemy activity in the DMZ has increased 50 per cent.

The Saigon government announced that several battalions of fresh troops were flown to the northern front. Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for South Vietnamese military headquarters, said there are now more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

An said some other units that were badly cut up in the Laotian campaign had been reinforced and reorganized to make them combat effective once more.

An said the buildup could have three meanings:

—Preparation for a new South Vietnamese offensive.

—Defense against North Vietnamese attacks, including one from across the DMZ.

—A rest period for troops just returned from the campaign in Laos.

Asked if the South Vietnamese might make a limited attack into the DMZ in an attempt to neutralize North Vietnamese forces moving in, An replied:

"I cannot say. I never predict what we're doing. I don't know. Wait a few more days."

Some sources felt it would be impossible for the South Vietnamese to mount a big offensive into the DMZ or into North Vietnam after the heavy losses their forces suffered in Laos.

The U.S. Command said the new SAM site was located by reconnaissance planes in the lower Laotian panhandle one mile west of the North Vietnamese border and one mile northwest of the DMZ.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported that enemy 152mm guns, with a range of 16 miles, opened fire from the DMZ on one of Saigon's bases at Dong Ha, 11 miles south of the buffer zone. Forty shells hit the base, killing and wounding several South Vietnamese soldiers.

It was the first reported artillery attack from the DMZ in several months. But U.S. gunners have been firing at targets in the southern half of the zone all along.

Reporting on the enemy buildup in the zone, one source said "sightings of enemy activity ... are up 50 per cent over February. These include troop movements, trucks, bunkers and mortar positions."

The source said 90 per cent of these sightings have been in the eastern half of the 40-mile long zone, which extends from the Laotian border to the coast.

About 50 per cent of the sightings were in the southern half of the zone, the source continued, and "we have taken under attack with artillery 40 per cent of the targets in the southern half, compared to about 35 per cent in February."

He said he knew of no artillery attacks in the northern sector, which is North Vietnamese.

He added he knew of no North Vietnamese artillery attacks from inside the DMZ against U.S. units stationed along the frontier.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said there have been isolated instances in the past in which North Vietnamese gunners have fired rockets and artillery across the DMZ but this was the first time he could recall the movement of guns into the area.

U.S. fighter-bombers last Sunday and Monday launched an estimated 200 strikes against SAM and anti-aircraft batteries and supply depots inside North Vietnam. The U.S. Command said that the bombers destroyed three principal missile sites, triggering more than 100 explosions.

Calley Jury... Long Weekend Looms

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI) — The jury in the murder court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. dampened speculation it was near a verdict by asking today for material for a detailed study of the village of My Lai.

Moments after the six-officer jury began its tenth day of deliberations word was sent out for five pencils. The jurors asked not for lead pencils used for ballot marking but for five different colored grease pencils for tracing events on a map.

The jury then asked for a "clean overlay," or a transparent plastic sheet without any chalk or pencil marks or it.

The overlay was for prosecution exhibit No. 4, a huge blown-up aerial photograph of the hamlet of My Lai 4 where Calley is charged with ordering, presiding over and participating in a slaughter of 102 Vietnamese civilians on March 16, 1968.

The jury apparently was ready to make a detailed and painstaking reconstruction of the Army's infantry sweep through My Lai, the testimony about where killings occurred, and the facts to be believed.

The jury, which started deliberating Wednesday of last week, had made no request for additional information Thursday, touching off speculation it might render a verdict shortly.

WATERWAY PLEA—Ambrose P. Salmini, of Yonkers, N. Y., added a new twist to picketing the U.N. by outfitting this barge with signs and exhibits calling for better treatment for Americans being held in North Vietnam. At either end of the craft are replicas of two North Vietnamese cells, the one at the right called the 'Hanoi Hilton' and the one at the left is supposed to be representative of those described by former POWs. The sign, in French, calls for support for the demand for humane treatment for the prisoners. The barge was towed back and forth in the East River near the U.N. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Five Prosecution Witnesses Take Stand in Arnold Trial

By WALTER S. CLARK
KINGSTON
Five prosecution witnesses testified Thursday at the murder trial of Rodney Arnold, 31, of Kerhonkson, accused in the fatal shooting of a woman friend on a highway in Accord on the morning of June 1, 1970.

The witnesses included Edward Blaustein, 36, husband of Mrs. Elizabeth Blaustein, 31, of Allgerville, the victim of the alleged murder.

A friendship affair between the defendant and Mrs. Blaustein was revealed during the trial in session before Ulster County Judge Raymond J. Mino and a jury of nine men and three women.

Before the first prosecution witness was called by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, opening remarks to the jury were made by the prosecutor and defense counsel, Francis Martocci.

During his opening in which he outlined the framework of the People's case, Vogt said the prosecution will prove through witnesses that Arnold, a former guard at Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch and Mrs. Blaustein had been having "an affair" for sometime prior to the morning of the shooting incident.

The prosecutor also noted he would prove that the night prior to the shooting, Mrs. Blaustein was a dinner guest at the Arnold home and that at 9:30 that night Arnold and Mrs. Blaustein left the house together and drove off in the woman's station wagon.

Investigators who will be called as witnesses, will testify that examinations they made showed that Mrs. Blaustein was fatally wounded as she sat in her vehicle by shots from a 9 mm automatic pistol that had belonged to the defendant, Vogt said. He also noted that an autopsy report will show that examination of the victim's body

"It's possible," said Col. Reid W. Kennedy, the military judge, of a verdict today. He added he would wait until Monday to prod the jury if they do not deliver.

"It's possible," said defense counsel George W. Latimer. But then he added: "My timing has not been right on anything in this case. I'm the one who expected a verdict in three days at the most."

"Nope—don't think so," said Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel, the prosecutor. He shook his head in firm emphasis.

The government has asked the jury to find Calley guilty as charged, which would make a penalty of death or life by imprisonment mandatory.

However, the jurors could reduce the charge and lower the penalty as far as a mere reprimand.

The trial entered its 59th day today, by far the longest court-martial proceeding in American history. The jurors had 165 exhibits in the deliberation room with them and were considering the evidence given by 90 persons who testified 103 times.

The six combat officers of the jury are considering four specifications against Calley: that on March 16, 1968, when he led his infantry platoon through My Lai, he murdered at least 30 civilians at a trail crossing, at least 70 more at a ditch, plus a man and a child.

On each count the jury can return one of four findings: acquittal, or guilty of premeditated murder, unpremeditated murder or manslaughter.

Premeditated murder is punishable by life imprisonment or death. For unpremeditated murder life in prison is the maximum. Each count of voluntary manslaughter could bring up to 10 years.

The six officers on the jury deliberated through a rainy day Thursday without asking, as they have been doing, for a readback of testimony.

It was only the third day since they got the case March 16 that the jurors have not been back in the courtroom for some legal action.

Blaustein also testified that he had seen Arnold on one occasion armed with a 9mm automatic pistol.

Other witnesses heard included State Trooper John Dunning of Ellenville, who had received the first call reporting the shootings last June. He told of the preliminary investigation that he and Trooper Wayne Lawrence had made before the probe was taken over by the BCI officers.

Also testifying were Kenneth Osterhout, a Kerhonkson taxi-cab owner; Leon Jennings and Chauncey Cook, who reside in the vicinity of Main Street and Route 209 in Accord where Mrs. Blaustein was discovered slumped over and bleeding in her station wagon.

The fifth witness called by the prosecution before yesterday's session of court recessed at 4:30 p.m. was Mrs. Blaustein's husband, Edward. He testified that he and his wife had legally separated less than three months prior to the incident near Accord, and the separation was partly due to his learning that his wife and Arnold were having an affair.

Under cross-examination, Blaustein admitted that he had owned as many as 25 to 30 guns and on one occasion during his separation from his wife she had taken with her a .32 caliber Colt revolver when she went to visit her three children at the Blaustein home.

Arnold has no recollection of events that occurred prior or after the June 1 incident, Martocci told the jury that because of the head injuries sustained by his client, the latter has been unable to confer with him about events that occurred the night of the alleged murder.

Defense counsel noted that bullet wounds sustained by Arnold the morning of the shooting, caused severe head damage to the defendant resulting in amnesia. Martocci said that the defendant suffered a loss of memory as the result of the bullet wounds and that Arnold has no recollection of events that occurred prior or after the June 1 incident.

Martocci told the jury that because of the head injuries sustained by his client, the latter has been unable to confer with

Civil War Developing Throughout East Pakistan

NEW DELHI (AP) — Pakistan's military government cracked down on rebellious East Pakistan today, and an Indian news agency reported fierce fighting in Dacca, the provincial capital, with heavy casualties.

Radio Pakistan said the army had taken control again, all political activity was banned and an indefinite curfew imposed throughout the eastern province of 70 million people.

The troops were ordered to shoot any curfew violators. The Indian government radio said reports from East Pakistan indicated "civil war rapidly developing."

Radio Pakistan said the army action was taken because "the law and order situation had reached alarming proportions." A United News of India dispatch from Assam said fierce street fighting had broken out in Dacca and the port city of Chittagong. The report said casualties were believed heavy, lot of unarmed people.

Another report said Pakistani army troops had crossed into Indian territory in the remote northeastern State of Tripura. But Indian army sources in Calcutta said the report was "incorrect."

They said it probably originated from a misunderstanding. Monitors in Calcutta said they picked up an appeal from Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, leader of the East Pakistani rebellion, to resist the enemy forces at all costs.

The president and the sheik had been talking for 11 days, they believed the message came from Chittagong or Khulna. Sheikh Mujib's message on autonomy for East Pakistan law in the province.

and still keep the geographically divided country from breaking apart politically.

Although East Pakistan is the more populous sector, the West Pakistanis have always dominated the central government; the army and the country. When the military government finally held elections last December as a preliminary to civilian rule, Mujib's Awami League won a majority in the National Assembly and at once began to press its demand for autonomy for East Pakistan.

When Mujib and West Pakistani political leader Zulfikar Ali Bhutto could not come to terms, Yahya postponed the opening of the assembly. This touched off riots in East Pakistan, and Yahya ordered martial law in the province.

Stewart Jetport—Some New Views

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON The trial balloon that once was the jetport at Newburgh's Stewart Field floated gently to earth today having accomplished its purpose of sniffing the wind.

The "informed sources" report that Gov. Rockefeller was planning to ask the legislature for money to convert the former Air Force field outside of Newburgh into a jetport, broke on Monday.

The area's representative in Albany, State Senator Richard Schermerhorn (R-Cornwall), voiced immediate protest and declared his intention to contact his colleague, Senator Jay P.

Rolison, (R-Dutchess-Ulster) And with good reason. Rolison is the chairman of the Authorities Committee of the State Senate through which any requests for money from the Metropolitan Transit Authority, now working on plans to convert Stewart into a commercial airfield, would have to pass.

Rolison indicated his opposition to the governor's reported proposal and announced that he would hold public hearings on the subject in Newburgh in April.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock), who had no comment on Monday concerning Rockefeller's alleged proposal, has now asked the governor for a list of specifics. "I have taken no position on this matter as there are a multitude of questions which cry out for answers," Bell wrote Rockefeller.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. entered the controversy on Thursday wiring The Daily Freeman:

"The only thing clear about the proposal to transform Stewart AFB into a major metropolitan jetport is that no one knows how seriously the suggestion was proposed."

"Governor Rockefeller's office has told me that a number of sites are under consideration and that the early story (that the governor would ask specifically for Stewart) was purely speculative."

"The Federal Aviation Administration has told me a decision to take another look at Stewart by the MTA occurred on the heels of a negative verdict on expansion of Kennedy Airport after a National Academy of Sciences study opposed such a proposal," Fish said.

"It seems a great deal of thought is being given to Stewart at this time," Fish noted.

"Any such development is clearly well down the road," Fish said. "Should these interests progress into hard plans, legislation passed by Congress last year assures a close scrutiny of any effects such a project would have on the local environment," Fish concluded.

Fish's observance that "a great deal of thought is being given to Stewart at this time," may have been somewhat of an understatement in light of the Greater Newburgh Chamber of Commerce's reaction to the rumors. "We emphasize that the Greater Newburgh Chamber of Commerce is unalterably opposed to the development of Stewart Airport as the fourth Metropolitan Jetport," Dr. Harold D. Katz, Chamber president, wrote to Gov. Rockefeller on Thursday.

Dr. Katz called for a statement from the governor so that "the confusion that has been generated during the past few days could be put to rest." Katz suggested that Rockefeller come out and declare that there would be no jetport at Newburgh.

He plans a meeting of local county, state and federal officials to exchange information and views on the "jetport issue" and resolve the confusion of the governor's "leaked" information.

Mrs. Resnick Counsel in Plea

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Counsel for Mrs. Ruth Resnick, widow of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick appeared in Ulster County Surrogate Court this week, claiming that the congressman's executors have failed to give Mrs. Resnick any income from the estate. The New York City attorney indicated he would press for the money for the mother of four children.

The plea was made at an intermediate proceeding before Judge Arthur Davis who adjourned the case until April 19. Any claims that are controverted will be set down for a hearing subsequent to April 19. The Freeman learned earlier this week that the solvency of the $6 million estate of the congressman who died in Las Vegas in 1969 at the age of 44, is in question.

In a lengthy statement at the intermediate proceeding attorneys for the executors claimed the estate is solvent in spite of the fact that delays in settlement have been blamed on the "extremely tangled and complex affairs" of Resnick. The executors include the congressman's brother, Harry Resnick, Louis Berger and Peter Mesina.

According to court records, the executors claim that Resnick "formed or acquired numerous corporations in an apparent effort to create a huge conglomerate enterprise."

During the 16 months since his death, 138 claims have been filed against the estate and 20 claims and counter claims are in Civil, Supreme and U. S. District Court, a few of which have been settled.

At one point, Resnick "pledged 117,171 shares of Avnet stock totaling $8.2 million as security for loans, such sum exceeding the value of the stock at the time of his death."

New Look for '71 Senior Citizen Seminar

KINGSTON Plans are moving swiftly ahead for the second annual Senior Citizen's Seminar, set for May 22, according to Alexander Yosman, coordinator of the Senior Citizen's Advisory Council, which is sponsoring the event.

The seminar, which attracted a turnout of more than 500 "golden agers" in 1970, will have six sessions devoted to what we felt were areas of prime concern to our area senior citizens. Our program included panel discussions in such areas as Housing; Social Security and Employment; Social Services; Recreation and Community Activities; Taxation and Inflation; and Health Services. With separate sessions, the best a senior citizen could hope for was to select the two panels that were of greatest interest, attend them, and rely on someone else to glean information from the

"At the May 22nd seminar, our areas of concern will remain basically the same, but our format for presenting this information has been changed and will hopefully result in the greatest number of people having the opportunity to hear what our invited experts in each field has to say," he said.

"What we plan to do," Yosman continued, "is to present our panel discussions in sessions of one and one half hour each. And, to help avoid the confusion caused last year by people moving from room-to-room for each session, the panels will do the moving this year and be able to hear each and every topic discussed."

"As we move closer to seminar day," Yosman said, "the Council will be providing more information on the seminar."

Members of the Senior Citizen Advisory Council are Harold Larsen of the Ulster County Department of Social Services; George Habernig of the Social Security Administration; Russell Brott of the New York State Employment Service; Marge Scherer and Marion Ostrander of the Ulster County Department of Health; Captain James Shatzberger of the Salvation Army; James Thompson of the Kingston Recreation Commission; Harry Gold of the Ulster County Bar Association; Dale Moffitt, public relations; Yosman and Bea Jaenisch of the Kingston Housing Authority.

Any senior citizen requiring assistance of any sort may receive help without charge by calling 338-0933.

Report Rocky, Leaders in Accord on Budget Cuts

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller and the legislature's Republican leaders were reported today to have reached a budget-cutting agreement that contemplates a abandonment of Rockefeller's proposed income tax increase.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea and Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges told reporters Thursday night that they had forged an "agreement in principle" with Rockefeller. They would not discuss details. Other high-level sources reported, however, that the tentative accord provides for budget cuts of around $700 million, with the bulk of the saving to be used to delete the $375-million increase in income taxes that Rockefeller originally had requested.

In addition, as reported earlier, the major boost in motor-vehicle registration charges that Rockefeller had proposed also would be scrapped.

Thus, according to the sources, the legislature would be asked to approve the bulk of the governor's remaining requests, headed by a one-cent increase in the state's sales tax, increases averaging 30 per cent in taxes on business profits and higher levies on such other items as cigarettes and liquor. Rockefeller has been asking for an additional three cents on a pack of cigarettes and 10 cents more on a fifth of liquor.

His income-tax proposal included a 10 per cent surcharge on all taxpayers, elimination of the $12.50 cash credits against the amount due and imposition of additional brackets for upper income taxpayers.

The governor had indicated strongly that he wished to withdraw or scale down the income-tax increase, saying he had concluded that it would hurt the state's economy.

Brydges and Duryea were withholding information on the agreement until they could discuss it in detail with rank-and-file members of the legislature's Republican majorities. Separate conferences of GOP senators and assemblymen were scheduled for this afternoon.

The avowed objective of the leaders was to obtain enough support from within Republican ranks to pass the revised version of Rockefeller's $8.25-billion budget by the April 1 start of the state's new fiscal year.

Duryea and Brydges said they were prepared to keep the legislature in session through Saturday—and Sunday, if necessary—until a solution to the budget-trimming problem was secured.

The leaders said they hoped to pass the trimmed budget without asking help from the Democratic minority, which has advocated a rival budget-economy plan. Many GOP lawmakers, however, have grumbled that the reported budget cuts are not deep enough and have threatened to withhold support on the nature of the budget reductions and insisted, as they had before, that decisions on tax cutbacks would be deferred until the precise amount of the spending economy was determined.

It was learned, however, that the agreement provides for cuts of about $200 million from funds earmarked for operation of the state government itself, about $400 million from state-aid programs and about $100 million from state construction projects.

Various sources reported that the GOP high command had discarded plans for revamping the public school-aid formulas and, instead, had settled on an across-the-board reduction of about $100 million.

The effect would be that every school district in the state would receive a small percentage less aid than Rockefeller had recommended during the coming fiscal year—but slightly more than they collected during the expiring fiscal year.

The governor had proposed a school-aid outlay of $2.28 billion, compared with $2.10 billion in the old fiscal year.

BERTRAND LARRAMENDY
... for Love of His Country

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The last will and testament of Bertrand Larramendy said briefly:

"Because I am extremely grateful to have lived in this country, I leave my entire estate to the government of the United States of America."

The U.S. government is $171,682 richer today.

Who was Bertrand Larramendy? What touched off his desire to leave all his money to the government?

Very little is known about him, and even less about his generosity.

However, his attorney said that three months before Larramendy died on Sept. 26, 1969, at the age of 83, he signed the will without explaining his reasons.

A longtime friend, Joe

Ferreira, said Larramendy emigrated from France to the United States and worked for a time in a lumber camp in California's Plumas County. Ferreira said he lived in California 60 years and in Sacramento 36 years.

Ferreira said Larramendy, who worked as a handyman at the lumber camp, "was very tight with his money, and he didn't dress fancy. But he was never hungry or cold."

"He bought stocks and houses, and he kept investing his money. Right after World War I, there were some shares of Pacific Gas & Electric Co. stock being sold, and he bought some."

"He paid a little on them each month, and then he bought out everyone else (who had shares) in the camp."

Boastful Coast Killer

'Zodiac' Hints Location of Victim 12

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Zodiac," wanted by police for six slayings, has sent another cryptic message hinting about the location of the body of "victim 12."

The boastful killer said earlier this month that he has slain "17-plus" victims and taunted police that he was "crackproof."

His latest message, consisting of newspaper clippings pasted to a postcard, seemed to say the body of his 12th victim can be found "around in the snow" in the Lake Tahoe area of the High Sierra.

Homicide detectives speculated the victim might be Donna Lass, 25, a pretty nurse who disappeared from South Lake Tahoe in September.

The postcard was sent to reporter Paul Avery of the San Francisco Chronicle, who received it Monday and turned it over to police. The newspaper made its contents public in today's editions.

A photo of a snow-covered condominium-style village was pasted to the message side of the post card, with several fragmentary newspaper headlines pasted over and below it.

They read: "Sought victim 12...peek through the pines...pass Lake Tahoe area...around in the snow...Sierra Club." A hole was punched in the pine trees in the upper right hand corner of the picture.

Miss Lass disappeared Sept. 6 after leaving a South Lake Tahoe casino where she worked as a nurse. "From the beginning we have believed she was abducted and is dead," said Police Chief Ray Lauritzen.

Long Range Plans Listed For Paltz Park

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ

When the Town of New Paltz is through with its Pioneer Park landfill area, town residents will be able to do a lot more than just leave their refuse.

Town Supervisor Anthony Moriello says, "I don't look at a landfill as just a dump, a place to throw garbage."

According to the town's long range plans, you will be able to fish, boat, picnic, play various sports, hike, ride your horse, and put the children in a well-designed play area as well as leave your trash at the now nearly 200 acre site.

Moriello said the town will develop approximately the front 40 acres of the site as a permanent recreation area. One ball field is already in operation, and another is planned for completion this summer.

Moriello said the footings were laid for the town garage last week at the site, and it and its proposed outbuildings will provide much needed recreational and park storage space.

The possibility of hiking and bridal paths and snowmobile and all-terrain-vehicle paths is being investigated, but Moriello said the park would not include a race track as part of its facilities.

The aim is to produce "a family oriented recreation area, not highly organized toward certain types of activities," said Moriello.

A lake has been "planned, mapped, and diagrammed," according to Moriello. It would expand the present small pond into a lake one-quarter mile long, and from 200 to 800 feet existing contours and a stream running through the property. While not envisioning the lake as a high priority swimming area, Moriello said it could be "a focal point for summertime water activities," such as boating, fishing, and lakeside picnicking.

There is even the possibility of a small 3-par type golf course on the site. Local scouting groups have been told there may be space on the site for them to set up permanent camps and council areas.

Moriello emphasized that the town is not going to simply use up the land as a dump, and then abandon the site. According to present plan, as each area outlives its usefulness as a landfill, clean fill and topsoil will be placed over it, and it will be reseeded and reforested.

All but the front 40 acres of the site is eventually slated for landfill use, but the town of New Paltz does not intend to have it remain idle until its turn comes.

The site is being developed gradually, on a year to year basis, as according to Moriello the recreational needs of the town are not sufficiently acute to demand a crash program.

The whole idea is to have a permanent green area for town residents when such an area becomes necessary. Given the present rate of growth for the town, that day of yearning for a patch of green is not as far in the future as some may think.

Bell Criticizes State Plan on Campus Schools

ALBANY

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell lashed out today at Gov. Rockefeller's proposal to abolish the New Paltz Campus School and the state's other campus schools.

The Republican legislator said such a move would result in a massive increase in local property taxes. "The Governor's proposal would cost the New Paltz School District taxpayers a quarter of a million dollars and would necessitate a tax increase of about $34 per thousand assessed valuation."

Gov. Rockefeller has proposed that campus schools be abolished and students transferred to local school districts or to have local school districts enter into contracts with campus schools which would in effect transfer the cost of education to local school districts.

Bell described Governor Rockefeller's proposal as shortsighted and unthinkable during this current fiscal crisis, saying, "Campus or lab schools are experimental educational schools and in addition to educating children, they also do research, experimentation and develop innovative educational programming. They allow for student teaching, demonstration lessons and they work cooperatively with the public school systems to improve education. They try to develop new progressive educational programs which greatly aid in keeping New York State's education programming current, relevant and meaningful."

Assemblyman Bell added that he will be working as hard as possible to kill Rockefeller's proposal in the Ways and Means Committee, of which he is a member.

BOCES Budget Cut Discussed

NEW PALTZ year was discussed at the regular board meeting Thursday night at the New Paltz Center. A decrease of approximately nine per cent in the net operating budget of Ulster County Board of Cooperative Educational Services for the coming year was discussed at the regular board meeting Thursday night at the New Paltz Center. Although the total gross tentative budget for 1971-72 is up almost 13 per cent over the current budget mainly due to programs expanded at the request of participating districts the net budget is down from last year. The estimated total gross tentative budget for the coming year is $2,235,636 an increase of $262,178 over the current budget of $1,973,458.

The estimated state aid for 1971-72 is $1,240,771, an increase of $356,203 over the 1970-71 state aid which was $884,568.

The estimated net budget is $994,865, a decrease of $94,025 over the 1970-71 budget which was $1,088,890.

The tentative budget and election of board members will highlight the annual meeting of BOCES to be held 8 p.m. April 7 at the New Paltz Center. Three board members will be elected. Posts to be filled are two five-year terms currently held by Ben Miller of Ellenville and Charles Emerick of Saugerties and a two-year term with William Schwarz of Wallkill as incumbent.

In other action the board authorized Dr. Jack Roosa, superintendent of BOCES to apply for federal funds for two projects. The grants would be approximately $50,000 for equipment to be used in pre-vocational education classes and $35,000 for an English and humanities program to be administered by BOCES in cooperation with Ontario, Wallkill and Highland High Schools.

The next regular meeting of BOCES will be held April 22.

No Motive Yet in Slaying

By JON POWERS

SAXON A motive has not yet been revealed in the rifle slaying of William Conley, 26, of Saugerties early Thursday morning in Saxton, State Police from Lake Katrine said today.

Charged with murder is Peter John Fogarty, 20, of 236 Washington Avenue, Saugerties. After arraignment yesterday, he was committed without bail to the Ulster County Jail.

Police said today that Conley was a boarder in the home of Arlene Dill, Fogarty's sister. Fogarty has been charged with shooting Conley in the back of the head with a 22 caliber rifle as he watched television in the Dill living room early Thursday.

Police said the rifle belonged to Walter Dill, Fogarty's brother-in-law.

Fogarty was recently discharged from the U.S. Navy, where he served in a two-year enlistment program.

The name of the deceased was withheld by State Police for about eight hours Thursday morning as they attempted to locate his nearest relative. Conley has no relatives in Ulster County State Police said, but has a brother who reportedly worked on a Rhode Island college campus.

Fogarty was arrested by troopers at the scene shortly after 2 a.m. Thursday. The Dill residence is located off Route 32A, about one-half mile from the Greene County line.

A closed preliminary hearing will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m. before Saugerties Justice Calvin H. Cody.

State Police BCI are continuing the investigation.

School Fire Probed

KINGSTON Street, which was reported at 7:20 p.m. and a fire in an automobile owned by Robert Everett of Stone Ridge. That blaze occurred in front of 12 West Chester Street shortly after 8 p.m. Damage was confined to the rear seat cushion and back rest. The cause was not determined.

Twenty-five volunteer firefighters of the Centerville Fire Department quelled a fire that erupted in a shed on the property of the High Woods Church early today.

Meanwhile, Ellenville firemen responded to a call Thursday night after fire was reported in a television set in the Fishman home on Irish Cape Road. Damage was confined to the set.

Other fires in the city included a chimney fire at 75 Emerick set.

3 Esopus Topics

The regional landfill, an oil spill and Christmas lights were the principal items of discussion on a broad agenda of Thursday night's Esopus Businessmen's Association meeting at Port Ewen Firehouse.

The businessmen were concerned with a report that the county regional landfill plan called for use of a quarry in New Salem. Town Justice Charles D. Montafra, a member of Esopus Town Board and 7th Dist. Legislator Lewis C. Kirschner spoke on the matter. Kirschner said it was part of a long range county plan and was under study in committee.

Richard Terpening reported on the Christmas street lighting and told of the problem of getting permission to install the lights on the poles available. It noted.

was suggested that the association discontinue the street Christmas lights and in its place conduct a home and business decorating contest to encourage holiday decorating.

Richard Williams, who prepared a sign for posting on the day of Town Board meetings noting that there would be a meeting that night, is now working on peddler warning signs, cautioning peddlers to secure a permit to peddle in the town from the town clerk's office.

Williams also reported that he is still investigating a report of an oil spill noted on the ice in Rondout Creek off the Sleightsburg dock. Since the ice and told of the problem of getting permission to install the lights on the poles available. It noted.

U.S. Income Gap

The income pie gets bigger and the slices larger, but the gap between the servings to rich and poor seem to stay about the same. That is the conclusion of Herman P. Miller, chief of the population division of the Census Bureau, in a new authoritative book, "Rich Man, Poor Man."

Miller contradicts earlier hopes expressed by prestigious economists. For instance, Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, said in 1951: "The transformation in the distribution of our national income may already be counted as one of the great social revolutions of history."

There was some closing of the gap in World War I and II, Miller says, because poor people got jobs. But the slice of the pie of the lowest one-fifth of the population was four per cent in 1947 and it was still four per cent in 1968, based on a study by the Census Bureau made in March, 1969.

That study showed that the lowest fifth of the 50,500,000 American families got six per cent of the total American income pie, or $32.6 billion; the highest fifth, 41 per cent, or $223 billion; and the top one per cent of the population, five per cent of the income, or $27 billion.

Many economic problems trace back to this uneven distribution of income. They are one reason for the fact that 12.5 million persons, or six per cent of all Americans, were on welfare at the end of 1970. Jobs, not welfare, is the real need.

This accounts for the many "distress" programs under study from Mr. Nixon's Family Assistance Plan, to Rep. Wilbur Mills' total reform of the welfare program, and the revolt of governors across the nation over their states' welfare loads. Instead of competing plans, federal executive and legislative officials should get together and work out a solution that will relieve the taxpayers while taking care of the nation's dependants, especially the children and elders, who are helpless to aid themselves.

Discrimination Declines

At least the government is practicing what it preaches in hiring, firing and promotion. Complaints of discrimination in government personnel declined last year. Was it because of the new emphasis on settling problems at the grass roots level? Or are things actually getting better? Officials are divided on the cause, they are just glad it is happening, that there are fewer complaints.

More than 1,000 federal workers a month visited equal opportunity employment counselors last year. They brought complaints about sex, race and age discrimination, the charges which are banned by law. But only 1,654 formal grievances were lodged, 650 less than the previous year.

As of July 1, 1969, new processing procedures had the effect of weeding out weak, groundless or unprovable discrimination charges. They left formal charges for legitimate complaints. New guidelines for equal employment officers are making sure no roadblocks are raised to legitimate complaints. For instance, EEO officers are to be located away from supervisory or executive offices, to avoid possible intimidation of lower-level employees with complaints.

All these efforts on the part of government to avoid sex, race or age discrimination are designed to keep peace in the huge federal establishment. Even more, they are also an example to private employers. If government employment can be managed without discrimination an all three levels, private employment can be. That is the message the U.S. Civil Service is emphasizing to employers everywhere.

How About a Trash Bash?

So many good things were put together in the first trash bash we ever heard of—environment cleanup, recycling rubbish and all in the name of a worthy charity. It was done by Ahavan (translated "Love") chapter of B'nai B'rith Girls of Penn Hills, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Everyone who went had cash knocked off by turning in waste, or trash, for recycling. Couples and singles were weighed in at the door. They got credit of one cent a pound for the trash they brought—jelly jars, pop bottles, cans, old newspapers and magazines. Decorations carried out the "Dance for Ecology" motif—Eco-Art made up of tin can, egg carton and plastic bottle creations competing in a mini contest. Refreshments were served in returnable pop bottles without straws or paper cups to clutter up things.

A tin man was the Eco-sculpture part of the decoration and paper flowers with coat hanger stems filled a giant pickle jar. For table decor, dolls were made of egg shells with newspaper doilies wound on cardboard cones. After the fun, the junk went to GRIP (Group for Recycling in Pittsburgh).

For an imaginative, useful and exciting idea, we heartily recommend the Dance of Ecology with all the trimmings. And if you don't dance, clean up anyway!

"I Have a Feeling I'm Not Right for Hot Pants!"

David Lawrence Says Nixon Says Laos Operation Has Fulfilled Its Purpose

WASHINGTON — An interview with President Nixon by a single news commentator, broadcast live on television and radio, is a novelty. Such an informal conversation with one person certainly affords an unusual opportunity for the chief executive to get his side of the story across and correct many misrepresentations or inaccuracies about current events.

Unfortunately, lots of subjects cannot be touched upon even in an hour's talk. Thus, on the Monday evening presentation over the American Broadcasting Company network, with Howard K. Smith doing the interviewing, no questions were raised about our policy in the Middle East or about the economic recovery programs on which business improvement depends so much.

Mr. Nixon was asked about his relations with Congress and whether or not he might be running in 1972, but there was really nothing surprising in his answers.

The President's explanation of what is going on in Indo-China shows clearly that, in his judgment, the news dispatches from Southeast Asia have not always given the whole story and may have left a misleading impression. Mr. Nixon feels that the South Vietnamese army has been making progress in both Cambodia and Laos, and that the over-all military strategy is working successfully. He believes it has been worthwhile because it means that "the American withdrawal will continue" and that "the danger to America's remaining forces has been reduced."

Mr. Nixon does not talk of any "complete" withdrawal because he may conclude that a residual force of Americans in South Vietnam will be necessary, as was the case in Korea. But he was emphatic in his declaration that, while his purpose is to end an American combat involvement, this must be done "in a way that South Vietnam will continue to survive as an independent country — have a chance to survive." He put it this way:

"If the United States now were to throw in the towel and come home and the Communists took over South Vietnam, then all over Southeast Asia, all over the Pacific, in the Middle East, in Europe, in the world, the United States would suffer a blow... would suffer a blow from which it might not recover."

The President declared that the South Vietnamese operation in Laos could not be described in "traditional terms of victory or defeat," though it has fulfilled its purpose of disrupting the enemy supply lines. But, he pointed out, the three long-range goals were "first, to insure the continuation of the American withdrawal; second, to reduce the risk to the remaining Americans as we withdraw; and, third, to insure the ability of the South Vietnamese to defend themselves after we have left." He is convinced much progress has been made toward achieving those goals.

Mr. Nixon referred to some television reports which might leave a different impression and said that, "while a picture doesn't lie, a picture may not tell all the truth." In his view, for example, emphasis has been given to the experiences of the four South Vietnam battalions which have been in trouble, but little attention has been paid to the 18 other battalions which have done "extremely well" in Laos. Mr. Nixon feels that the morale and capability of the South Vietnamese Army have been greatly strengthened.

All this, the President believes, has made it possible for the United States to continue the withdrawal of its troops, perhaps at a faster rate. He opposes, however, any effort by Congress to fix a deadline, and said with some vehemence:

"I know when we are going to get out. We have a plan. It is being implemented... we are not going to tell the enemy now that there is no need for them to negotiate, that there is nothing to be gained by their coming to the conference table."

As to his own relations with the news media, Mr. Nixon made it clear that he is not complaining about his treatment, though he acknowledges he probably has "less supporters in the press than any President" in this century. He regards this as due to a "philosophical difference." He realizes that the "anti-war spokesman in Congress have been stirring up a good deal of opposition and have received considerable publicity, which is only natural from a news standpoint."

Up to now, the administration often has not been quick to respond or to refute some of the criticisms, and this has much to do with impressions formed by the people about public affairs. The President's interview this week may mark a new approach to the problem by the White House.

Real Desire Here for More Meaningful Pacts With Soviet

RAY CROMLEY
 WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is difficult to describe how very concerned high officials in the Nixon administration are over the present state of relations with the Soviet Union.

There is a real desire here, clearly evident when one talks with any official dealing with the problem, for some sort of relaxation of tensions with Moscow.

President Nixon, like President Eisenhower, in whose objectives Nixon has very great faith, believes that he would secure his place in history if he could achieve any sort of reasonable accommodation.

Equally important, if some working agreement is not achieved, it is difficult to see how the President can solve a host of other problems which plague the country and therefore plague his administration.

Chief among these are a reasonable defense budget to make possible a step up in domestic programs, an end to the draft and real peace in Vietnam and the Middle East. It is not the attitude of the Russian negotiators at SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks), or on Berlin or the Arab-Israeli war that concerns the White House. The Russians are tough negotiators looking out for Moscow's interests and they fight, as expected, on every point.

The problem is that no arms or nonaggression agreement is worth the paper it is written on unless both countries have the will to enforce it.

There are cases where a means exists for quick, effective action against a violator, as in the accord on Cuba. In that situation, the Soviet Union has made a series of attempts to establish a missile submarine base at Cienfuegos in violation of the agreement with President Kennedy. But they have been restrained by a combination of almost instant air intelligence and the ability of the United States to react.

In the case of a strategic arms agreement with Russia, it is virtually impossible to devise a sure means for enforcement. We discover advanced strategic missile developments only after the first missile (or prototype) is displayed or put in its silo. This could be dangerously late.

When a Soviet violation is discovered, it is very difficult in the open society of the United States to convince the public that a violation has occurred which is serious enough to risk a new arms race.

Nixon is known to believe that even on such a relatively simple matter as West Berlin, an agreement — no matter how precisely written — can be nullified by Russian and East German bureaucratic harassment. Therefore it could be effective only if the general East Europe-West Europe political situation improved.

In this sense a SALT agreement become practical only if there is a mutual U.S. Soviet accommodation on world-wide difference of such a character that there is no incentive for Moscow to cheat.

For one thing, a Soviet willingness to accommodate on an equal exchange basis would tend to indicate that the current Soviet attitude was indeed one of live and let live.

Without accommodation, the assumption in Washington is that Moscow will make determined repeated attempts to evade any agreement it makes, as it has in Cienfuegos.

Jack Anderson Says Washington's 'In' Sport: Hunting Anderson's Tipsters

WASHINGTON — Periodically, the Pentagon tries to scare off our news sources by unleashing its bloodhounds to find out where we get our information.

The bloodhounds are now loose again, searching up and down Pentagon corridors for our trail, growing menacingly at anyone who might have been seen talking to us.

The brass hats want to know how we found out that Air Force rainmaker have been seeding the clouds over the Ho Chi Minh trail network during the wet seasons.

This novel attempt to produce cloudbursts to wash out the trails, we reported, was known by the secret code name "Intermediary-Compass." Only a few insiders were supposed to know that, and the brass would dearly like to find out who blabbed.

There is also outrage on the Pentagon's outer "E" ring, which the top brass inhabit, over our story about the contingency plans to bomb North Vietnam. We reported that the plans, transmitted to the Pentagon last October 17 and kept constantly up to date, include the bombing and mining of Haiphong harbor.

It was our mention of the exact date that seemed to upset some generals the most.

Secret Tapes
 Again last December, we told how the bosses of the armed forces radio-TV publications empire sang songs, cracked bathroom jokes and roared with laughter as they decided whom to fire at Christmas time. The brass called an urgent meeting of employees to assure them our allegations were "false" and "malicious."

We offered, therefore, to play tapes of the secret proceedings and let the employees listen to the hilarity for themselves. Thereupon, Assistant Defense Secretary Roger Kelley gave up trying to deny the story and ordered an investigation instead to discover where we got the tapes.

He has now called in the FBI whose director, J. Edgar Hoover, happily assigned agents Leslie Chisholm, William Crowder and James Ott, Jr., to the investigation. The 76-year-old FBI chief is sore at us for using some of his own techniques to investigate him.

A contest has now developed between us to see who can find out the most about the other. At this point, I contend that my file on Hoover is more illuminating than his file on me.

The Pentagon's inspections chief, himself, W. Donald Stewart, is handling the investigation of us assisted by his sidekick S.J. Cardice. We have questioned Chisholm, Cardice and Kelley about the probe. All declined comment. Chisholm would reveal only the spelling of his first name but refused to say how his last name is spelled.

The farce, however, has its serious undertones. The Pentagon seeks to control the flow of information to the public by classifying all embarrassing facts, then intimidating anyone who dares to mention these classified facts outside of Pentagon circles. This is a form of censorship that the public should tolerate.

Military Beards
 America's beleaguered military brass is now faced with a new disciplinary problem which has literally broken out at Air Force bases across the country.

It's a painful, pimply skin disease called "pseudofolliculitis." Because it is impervious to medication and is seriously aggravated by shaving, it can best be treated by growing a beard.

But unhappily, many rebellious young recruits are already growing beards in defiance of regulations, and the brass hats are having a devil of a time figuring out which beards are forbidden and which are by doctor's orders.

It has become so confusing at Peace Air Force Base in New Hampshire that airmen with the disease are required to carry a copy of their shaving waiver.

But this has merely aggravated the problem because three extra file copies must be made of the shaving waiver, and this has caused a backlog of paperwork. Moreover, the waivers are good for only three months at which time they must be renewed, causing more red tape and paperwork.

The disease is caused by close-cropped beard hairs kinking and digging into the skin. If the beard hair is allowed to grow, the hairs extend and dislodge from the skin.

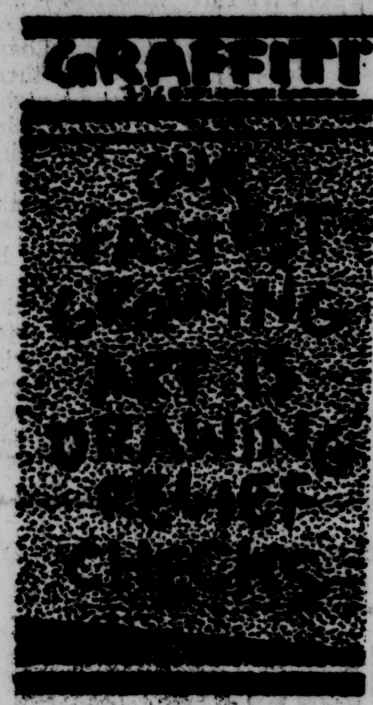

One Air Force doctor, Willard Steck, thinks an airman prone to pseudofolliculitis should shave lightly with a double-edge razor. The soldier will still have a slight stubble after shaving, according to the doctor, but his "commander will have to accept this."

School Crusade
 The once fuddy-duddy National Education Association is preparing a scathing attack on the federal budget crew for spending $10,000 to train and equip each soldier, but only $659 per student.

The NEA, headed by a tough former Nashville school marm, Helen Bain, has been quietly producing tapes for shipment to 6,000 radio stations. These will outrage some of the nation's 2.3 million teachers.

A typical tape, obtained by us, opens with the sneering voice of a White House budget maker:

... one C-5A transport $47 million...
 ... What are you doing?
 Voice 1: "Figuring out the federal budget. Who are you?"
 Voice 2: "Just a taxpayer."
 Voice 1: "All right. Let's see... where was I? Total military budget — 67 billion, aid to public schools about 4 and 6-10th billion..."
 Voice 2: "Wait a minute. You're spending 14 times more for the military than for education. Isn't somebody gonna get wise?"
 Voice 1: Not on that kinda money, they're not."
 Mrs. Bain, an attractive blond, has told intimates that the traditional schoolteachers' hat-in-hand approach to the White House has brought school kids little more than shabby schools and coverless books. Meanwhile the Pentagon has been wallowing in wasteful projects.

Henry J. Taylor Says Rivalry in Israeli Cabinet

President Nixon has unstated hopes in the vital Egypt-Israel negotiations. One basis for these is the fact that Israel needs friends. And Mr. Nixon feels privately that the Soviet Union, in turn, determined to employ the strategic Indian Ocean area, still has a No. 1 objective: a situation suitable to Egypt for reopening the Suez Canal.

Actually, the President's first gleam of hope came on the first day he took office. That very morning he discovered that, unknown to him at the time, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko has visited Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in Cairo on December 21-23, 1968. Then the Kremlin formalized a secret proposal for the new American President, delivered it when Mr. Nixon took office, and even went so far as to attach maps.

Incoming President Nixon was incredulous at first. Then he called in Secretary of State William P. Rogers and former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, his Middle East observer. By nightfall they were most impressed of all that the Soviet for the first time omitted its insistence, the Arab world's pressures notwithstanding, that Israel deal with the Arabs through the United Nations.

Today the President is highly conscious of the bitter rivalry and infighting with the Israeli Cabinet. Dynamic, tough and ingratiating Gen. Moshe Dayan, the Israeli Defense Minister, was recently Mr. Nixon's White House visitor. The Israeli war hero inadvertently demonstrated the depth of feelings between himself and his faction and supporters of Premier Golda Meir, who has ruled a Tel Aviv coalition government since March, 1970.

A football team's performance usually dictates the plays the other team uses against it, and it was clear to Mr. Nixon that that is what's happening now in Israel. Most nations have factions and schisms, and when one faction is menaced the other factions see the chance for their advantage in this. That combines with some leaders' inveterate temptation to exploit a national crisis (as Nasser did so often) to become a great historical figure. Moreover, the rival Dayan-Meir factions' weapons of gossip, slander and ambition make both leaders vulnerable to public damage—which is all water on the Soviet wheel.

Equally clear is the effect of this on able Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Israel's spokesman at the White House, and in the U.N. Spokesman Eban is caught in the middle of an ocean liner caught in a lethal outbreak of naval warfare.

Mr. Eban plainly does not know from day to day when the rug will be pulled out from under him by some flash from Tel Aviv. Accordingly, both the President and Secretary Rogers find Eban falling back on the diplomatic truism that you are not obligated to explain anything you have not said. The result is a very thin and cloudy soup from spokesman. Eban in the White House negotiations at the very time when this is a dangerous extravaganza.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rogers find the Israeli position frozen on Premier Meir's March 11 announced refusal to withdraw from strategic Sharm el Sheikh above the Straits of Tiran, "Israel's only link with East Africa and Asia," and the castigation of U.S. intermediary Dr. Gunnar V. Jarring for proposing similar withdrawals.

Timely Quotes

It's a sad state of affairs when we have to try to pass laws to get motorists to lock their cars and remove the ignition keys. If people don't care about their property enough to take simple precautions, what can law enforcement agencies or the insurance industry hope to accomplish?

—Robert L. Barton, special agent for the National Automobile Theft Bureau.

Well, we haven't put in pay toilets yet. I don't think we will, but anything where you can reduce costs and earn some extra revenue is going to be looked at.

—An airlines official, commenting on the industry's economic situation.

The layman's constitutional view is that what he likes is constitutional and that which he doesn't like is unconstitutional. That about measures up the constitutional acumen of the average person.

—Hugo J. Black, associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

As one must, Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rogers believe Israel will ultimately negotiate about the Golan Heights, much of the territory (outside Jerusalem) taken from Jordan, and even parts of the Sinai Peninsula, which Israel is insisting are not negotiable.

In world affairs nations often have the choice between dishonor and war. The diplomats' business is precisely to avoid the one as well as the other. A schism is often incapable of dying either. That schism is a dangerous, dangerous new in Tel Aviv.

In projecting plans for the 83 structures involved in the townhouses, designer Sands had estimated their construction cost at more than $2 million; had added another $50,000 for the motel and approximately $200,000 for a 200-300 seat restaurant ostensibly withdrawn from the plans at the last minute.

The Estates was not represented at the vote-taking by either owner Mundt or his lawyers. Gerald Wapner, who had served as attorney for the Estates at the public hearing, appeared after the vote to announce that he no longer represented the corporation.

What Mundt will come up with as an alternative is only conjecture at this point. He is on record as saying that he will "never destroy" the property, but he has also made it clear that it was purchased for "business purposes" and a way must be found to make it "economically profitable." The denial of the variances does not eliminate the possibility that he will still develop commercially that part of the property now located in the C-1 commercial zone.

The young woman was fined $250 on the drugs count and given a one year conditional discharge count, with the understanding that she is not involved in similar incidents. Says The Green Thumb

Time Is Ripe for Early Tomato Start

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Right now's a good time to be planning on getting the first ripe tomatoes in your neighborhood. If you order seed, keep in mind that you should stick to early varieties, especially if you live in a frost pocket. There's an advantage to starting seed early indoors and then transplanting the seedlings into pots. Many of you have tomatoes well along the way now, and they're quite spindly. Some even have blossoms on, which means they'll soon have small green fruits. When warm weather rolls around you can set the tall plants in the soil deeper, as they can root up and down the stem.

Some gardeners like to use blossom-set sprays to ripen their tomatoes from one to three weeks earlier. The spray comes in aerosol cans, or in liquid form, ready for dilution. You spray the flower clusters when they are open or are partly open. The blossom-set hormone sprays make the fruit set, holds them on the plants. Tomatoes do not set fruit when the outdoor temperature is 59 degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

You can get around this by spraying the blossoms with the hormone material, found in garden centers. FREE. Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GET EARLY TOMATOES FIRST. My guide tells how to prune and stake tomatoes, and how to grow them on a wire corset. This system is called the Chinese tomato ring and it works like a charm for those who do not have much space to grow tomatoes. A GOOD MARIGOLD: Last year we grew a marigold called Moonshot, a low growing hybrid which starts to bloom early. Flowers are fully three inches in diameter, and a handsome clear yellow. Plants grow 14 inches high. Apollo hybrid marigold grows 14 inches high, and is loaded with orange blooms right up until frost in fall. If you've been having poor luck with the giant marigolds blooming, I'd try some of these new hybrids.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "I have a chance to get some hardwood bark and wonder if it can be used as a mulch around evergreens."

Answer: No reason why you can't. In fact, it's being marketed in bags containing three cubic feet of the bark mulch, enough to cover 36 square feet of surface to a depth of one inch. It's a good idea to fortify the mulch with a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17, drenched on two or three times during the season. This will prevent a nitrogen shortage.

Lawn Needs Some Help After a Cold Winter

Don't expect your lawn to look as attractive coming out of winter as it did last fall. There is no healing while grass is dormant, and disease and traffic may have caused trouble.

Salt may have caused injury near driveways or walks and mice may have made thorough- fares under the snow.

What must you do to repair the lawn?

Sunny weather and spring rains will help, but you should reseed bare spots promptly to thicken depleted turf. Booster seeding is done at half the rate recommended on the package for new lawns. Use good quality seed with "fine-textured" components and without serious lawn weeds.

Use a lawn spreader either with whirl-cast or drop arrangements, for best results.

Seed early. Freezing doesn't harm seed, but don't expect it to sprout in cold weather. The tiny seeds become imbedded to advantage in frost pits of the soil. Before reseeding, rake up thatch that could prevent seed from reaching soil.

If you want to thin the lawn, there are for rent power rakes that slice turf. The soil scratches from a thinner make a good home for seed.

Feed early if the lawn has not been fertilized recently.

Fertilization at time of seed- ing should not cause difficulty, for the rains that bring sprout- ing also disperse nutrient salts. But once seed has sprouted, don't fertilize until the seed- lings are old enough to have had two mowings.

Avoid weed killers until new grass is established.

Public Relations Topic at Seminar

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE — "Dealing with the press is like a love affair," quoted Martin Buskin, education editor of Newsday, to an audience of school board members and administrators Thursday night at the Camelot Inn.

"You have rocky times and sometimes pack up and go home to mother, but you always must get back together," Buskin was one of four speakers to address a special "School-Community Relations" seminar sponsored by the Mid-Hudson School Study Council in cooperation with the Mid-Hudson School Board Institute.

The others were George E. Lowe, director of public relations for the State School Boards Association with Buskin in the early session, and Arnold M. Bloom, director of public information with the State Education Department and Albert E. Holliday, director of the Office of Information and Publications with the Pennsylvania Department of Education in the late session.

All speakers stressed as their main theme the necessity of every school district to maintain either a full-time or at least part-time public relations person to deal with the media.

Lowe started off by stating that a Board of Education's first duty is adopting a policy for the Board. "Board members are acting as state officials," he noted, and pointed out the two primary functions as matchmaking and accountability.

He said that the Board's function is to match the funds available to desired results, and that it has a duty to account to the public what it is doing. "The free press has a right to the facts and its expression of editorial opinion," he said. "When dealing with the media, nothing is off the record."

And he said that the price paid by not supplying the media with accurate facts is often in the news.

Buskin stressed the same theme, saying, "If an administrator or school board member says, 'No comment,' we have to run a story anyway. We can't say, 'There will be no story today because of no comment.' So we send our reporter to get the information from faculty, from students, or anyone else who is probably less informed."

Lowe explained that the function of the PR man is to "match what is happening to what the public thinks is happening."

"You do have public relations whether you want it or not," he said in summing up his presentation.

Buskin's Newsday is the largest circulation suburban newspaper in the country, and he has been "writing education full-time for eight years."

20 Arrested In Drug Raid In Dutchess

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (UPI) — Twenty persons were arrested early today in southern Dutchess County on bench warrants charging criminal sale of narcotics.

Some of the arrests were made on the campus of Marist College here, authorities said.

The arrests climaxed a six-month investigation by state police and the district attorney's office.

Murder Hearing Off for a Week

TOWN OF ULSTER Wednesday until March 31.

Preliminary hearing for Mrs. Helen Acker, 22, of Mahwah, N.J., on a charge of murder stemming from the fatal shooting of a gas station attendant on the Thruway near New Paltz on the night of Oct. 26, 1970 was adjourned the shooting death of Gordon Shattrenburg, of Park Ridge, N.J. His bullet-riddled body was discovered in a culvert off the superhighway on the morning of Oct. 27 by a passing truck driver.

Parker is in the county jail without bail under indictment for murder in the youth's death. Mrs. Acker was turned over to State Police of the Kingston Zone Headquarters two weeks ago, after she waived extradition.

She had been held in New Jersey as a material witness in the murder of another gas station attendant, Michael McGraw, 25, of West Nyack.

Dr. Reppert Acting Head Of Drug Group

KINGSTON — The Ulster County Drug Commission met this week and named Dr. Edmund Reppert as temporary chairman and made Ann Donovan acting secretary.

The commission, appointed recently by Chairman of the Legislature Peter J. Savago, will serve as a central coordinator for all drug abuse programs in the county.

Its initial effort will be directed toward an analysis of the drug problem, a review of all programs, facilities and personnel presently available.

The commission hopes to coordinate programs in order to prevent duplication of effort and funds and to suggest additional measures as indicated in order to provide Ulster County with the most effective drug abuse program possible.

Dr. Reppert said that all programs requesting state or county funds must be first submitted to the commission. Cooperation of all agencies involved and of the public in general is essential for the success of combatting the drug problem.

The meeting was devoted primarily to attempts to define the duties and responsibilities of the commission. All programs or questions referred to the commission should be mailed to the Ulster County Drug Commission, Ulster County Legislature, Kingston.

The commission plans to meet again in two weeks.

Paltz Lecture Slated Tonight

J. Ronald Woodruff, School of Architecture of the University of Pennsylvania, will present a lecture and workshop on the theme of "Habitat and Environment — What Can Be Done" at State University College, New Paltz, this weekend.

The lecture will take place tonight 8 p.m. in Lecture Center 100. The topic will be "Space, Land, and New Cities." The general workshop and discussion will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the 10th floor Faculty Tower lounge.

Those wishing to attend the workshop should contact Lynn Madlener of the Experimental School. All interested members of the community are invited to attend these events, and no admission fee will be charged.

Meanwhile, a photographic display of the college, will be included in the State University's exhibit at the third annual College and University Conference and Exposition, to be held today through Sunday in Atlantic City, N. J.

The New Paltz exhibit is comprised of five photos of buildings on campus. They are the new Mohonk Science Building, the Tower, Lecture Center, Library Complex, and an architect's drawing of the campus plan.

The photos and plan were chosen because of their visual appeal and overall good placement on the campus.

M. Douglas Stafford, vice-president for administration, will represent New Paltz at this conference.

Man Is Jailed, Lieu of Fines

After pleading guilty to four separate traffic charges early Friday morning, Alfred Scott, 18, of 12 North Grand Street, Poughkeepsie, was committed to the Ulster County Jail for 25 days in lieu of fine payments totaling $80, it was reported by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Smoking Prevention Lecture Attended by 225 Students

KINGSTON, N. Y. (AP) — A school met recently at the Kingston High School gym to see and hear a lecture on smoking prevention presented by Dr. George Wootan of the Mormon faith and Pastor Dan W. Schiffbauer of the Kingston Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The program began with the showing of the film "Time Pulls the Trigger." This film depicted the harm that smoking does to the lungs and the deadly effect of the poison of nicotine to the body.

Dr. Wootan gave a message with slides showing the damage to the lungs due to smoking. He showed how the death rate in lung cancer has increased in recent years as the result of increased smoking. He also explained that more women have died as a result of lung cancer because of smoking. He also showed several lungs—healthy lungs and lungs blackened with tar from cigarettes. One lung was filled with holes and had come from a patient that died of emphysema.

Dr. Wootan's lecture was followed by a lively question period. Many questions were asked by the students indicating serious thought on this subject by the young people.

Pastor Schiffbauer presented a message illustrated with a smoking manikin. He was assisted by Mrs. Virginia Yaple, school nurse. As the speaker explained the harmful effects of the accumulation of tar on the lungs, Mrs. Yaple pressed a little rubber ball which caused the manikin to inhale and exhale the cigarettes. The rubber ball was connected by plastic hoses to two glass jars. These glass jars contained white spun glass discolored by a dark brown tar from the cigarettes. Pastor Schiffbauer explained that filter tips do not take the poisons out of the tar and that coarser tobacco is used with filter tips to give the tobacco a stronger taste. The fact was also stressed that one cigarette robs a person of 20 minutes of life expectancy and one pack of cigarettes six hours and 40 minutes.

This smoking prevention program was presented with the cooperation of the Ulster County Interagency on Hazards of Smoking which includes the American Cancer Society of Ulster County, Mid-Hudson Heart Association and the Catskill T.B. and R.D. Association.

A poll taken indicated that 80 per cent of the boys and girls present were smokers.

Pastor Schiffbauer announced that the next Five-Day Plan to Quit Smoking will be held at the George Washington School Auditorium from April 25 to 29 at 7:30 p.m. each day.

Man, 86, Gives Up License

Just Got Tired of Driving

KINGSTON — "I just got tired of driving," 86-year-old Herbert DeWitt said Wednesday as he turned in the driving license he has had for 58 years to County Clerk Albert Spada.

Actually, the Lomontville resident, whose first car was a 1913 Ford Model T, confided that his eyesight gets a little "cloudy" once in a while and he thought it best that he not risk driving anymore.

A former construction worker, whose job took him from New York City to New England and Canada on many occasions, DeWitt has never had a traffic arrest or a serious accident, just a few fender-benders. He said he has owned just about every make of car including a Pierce Arrow and his present Corvair which he now intends to sell.

"I think other people my age should give up their licenses too," he declared advising that perhaps the age of 75 would be a good point to consider such a move.

Commenting on today's driving scene, the spry old gentleman said the "kids are too wild" and "I remember when we had horses and buggies and better streets than now—cleaner too!"

Asked how he planned to get home to Lomontville, now that he couldn't drive, he pointed to his friend Garfield Jeffress who smiled and said, "We friends and neighbors will see that he gets around."

Apple Promo Set by Fish

KINGSTON — The promotion of Hudson Valley apples and a proposal to raise the Social Security earnings limitations are upcoming on the agenda of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.

The apple promotion will be held in Washington, Wednesday, March 31.

The annual promotion, sponsored by Congressman Fish, is an effort to develop awareness on the National level of Hudson Valley apples, one of the 28th Congressional District's most important crops.

The affair features the presentation of free apples, donated by the growers of Ulster, Columbia, Greene and Dutchess Counties, to everyone eating in all House and Senate restaurants on the day of the promotion. In Washington for the day will be major growers from the four-county area.

According to Congressman Fish this year's promotion will include a luncheon with congressional and administrative leaders in the fields of agriculture and labor. These will include W.R. Poage, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture; Malcolm Lovell, assistant Secretary, Department of Labor; Richard Lyng, assistant secretary for Marketing and Consumer Services of the Department of Agriculture.

New York Senators Jacob Javits and James Buckley have also indicated they will attend the luncheon, Congressman Fish said.

One of the highlights of the promotion is the passing out of apples by the Hudson Valley Apple Queen, who this year is Lea Konkle of Kinderhook.

Among the growers from the four-county area who have indicated they will attend this year are: Benjamin Bartolotta, Columbia County; Charles Andola, Ashton Heart, and to raise the Social Security Anthony Moriello, of Ulster County; and Wally Schreiber and Robert Greig of Dutchess County.

"This list is incomplete at the moment as a number of growers have not yet indicated whether they will be with us on Apple Day at this time," Congressman Fish said. "If past experience holds, we will have between 25 and 30 Hudson Valley apple growers attending."

Rep. Fish is also introducing legislation to raise Social Security earnings limitations from the present $1,680 to $2,400 and to add an automatic cost of living increase formula to the law.

Congressman Fish said that although he was pleased the 10 per cent Social Security increase which had been signed into law, "in the haste to get this much needed and highly deserved benefit increase into law, the needed earning limitation increase and automatic cost of living increments which were approved by the House last year, were dropped."

One Year Construction Delay On New College Field House

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
Construction on the new field house at State University College, New Paltz, has been shelved at least for this year, according to M. Douglas Stafford, vice president for administration at the college.

The $5 million plus structure was successfully bid, according to Stafford, but high State University officials have halted the construction. There is no indication when the construction may begin again. About $375,000 has already been spent in the building's planning.

General statewide economic conditions are believed to be the reason for the construction halt of the field house. State University officials, however, did not specify why the athletic facility could not be built this year.

The college's Fine Arts Building has received planning funds, and is undergoing final design, according to Stafford. It should be bid this summer, provided the state legislature approves funds for its construction, Stafford said. He said the building was "needed badly", but its approval by the legislature was far from certain.

Construction is continuing on the Administration Tower and the new Student Union Building, and Stafford said they should be completed this fall.

In addition to the hold-up of the field house and the uncertainty regarding the Fine Arts Building, Stafford said there was a state-wide halt, with few exceptions, on construction of new dormitories.

Under the present circumstances, the state university has determined that private firms can do a better job of providing living space for students than the university can. According to Stafford, present circumstances include "a change of life style of students" and the high cost of running a dormitory with a centralized eating facility.

Board at New Paltz costs about $650 per year, and Stafford said many students have to feed themselves rather than use college facilities.

When asked by The Freeman what effect a refusal by or an inability of the private sector to provide adequate student housing in the New Paltz area would have on the college's long-range plans for expansion, Stafford said it would not have an effect on the actual numbers, but it might turn the college into a commuter college. He pointed out that the college already has a large number of students who commute from parts of Ulster and Dutchess counties.

Making a commuter college out of New Paltz raises a new set of problems in the area of parking, and parking at New Paltz is a problem already. Stafford said at a peak period there are 5,000 cars on campus. There are spaces for 1,300.

New Paltz has had great difficulty in getting parking lots built. Stafford felt the stumbling block has been a disagreement on the type of parking to be provided. The state university favors free parking, while the legislature favors a system of paid parking.

Stafford did see a ray of hope in the gloomy parking picture. "The situation is becoming so bad," he said, "the state university and the legislature will have to get together."

140 Take Part In Successful Albany March

ALBANY
The aim of the parents and students of the New Paltz Campus School who made Thursday's march on Albany was to dramatize and underline the opposition in New Paltz to a budget bill that could force the closing of the school. Mrs. A. E. Woolley, organizer of the march, said it was "very successful."

The bill would require a school district to pay the State University for each student attending a campus school, and would cost the New Paltz School District about $240,000 per year to keep the Campus School open. This would mean a school tax hike of $33.88 per $1000 assessed value for district residents.

Mrs. Woolley said the response was so great from the Campus School students that they could not take all of them who showed up for the march. It was finally determined to take those students in the upper four grades, about 16 in all. The group filled to capacity four school buses, Mrs. Woolley said. The buses were provided by the New Paltz School Board in an emergency session Tuesday night.

Mrs. Woolley said the group was met in Albany by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock), Chairman of the Ulster County Legislature Peter J. Savago (R-8), Dr. Friedman, the education analyst of the Assembly's Ways and Means Committee, and Mr. DuLea, the liaison between Gov. Rockefeller and the State University of New York.

A delegation of students and parents was taken into the Ways and Means Committee's meeting room, and a 45-minute discussion was held.

Bell, a member of the Ways and Means committee, said he is hopeful of having the bill killed in committee. Failing that, he said he has prepared a piece of legislation which would extend the life of the Campus School past the July 1 deadline specified in the budget bill. He also said he is introducing legislation to enable a school district to count new students in figuring its state aid ratio immediately. Present law requires a district to wait two years.

Mrs. Woolley commended the conduct of the students, and observed that they all seemed very well informed on the issue.

When they returned from Albany, they were met by Dr. Merrill Archard, Campus School principal, and Dr. John J. Neumaier, president of the New Paltz College. Mrs. Woolley said Neumaier told her that he had already received a call from officials in Albany saying the march was a "positive step", and complimenting the conduct of the group.

Mrs. Woolley said she was "awfully pleased" with the march, and added, "The legislators know we are watching them."

Next Recycling Day April 3

KINGSTON

The Environmental Task Force of the Total Community Development has set April 3 as the next Recycling Day.

In alerting the public to the date, a spokesman urged that residents save newspaper, magazines, aluminum cans and bottles for the collection. Further information will be announced in the near future including collection depot site and arrangements for pick up of articles.

The first drive was conducted earlier this month with great success. The group received much cooperation from the community including use of four city trucks and drivers donated by Mayor Francis R. Koenig.

In addition, food was donated by McDonald's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Dunkin Donuts, and Sippy's. Gasoline was donated by Jim Carter S&C Tire Service, Rich's Sunoco. Mobile—Allan Sheard Jr., Gulf on Boulevard, Bill's Mobile, and Shaller's Automotive.

As in the first successful drive, the Kingston High School parking lot is listed as the depot. Volunteers are needed to help and those with cars and trucks and others who drive are asked to volunteer their services. They can call 331-3594.

Valley this year was made by Edward L. Sprute, president of the Mendelssohn Club Male Choral Concert of Kingston. Scheduled for May 1st at Kingston, the Massed Choral Concert is under the sponsorship of Kingston's Mendelssohn Club.

To be composed of at least 300 mixed voices, portions of the program will be under the direction of several of the valley's outstanding choral directors. Noted participants in the Massed Choral program will be The Catskill Glee Club, the Poughkeepsie Mixed Chorus, New Paltz Women's Chorus and the Mendelssohn Club.

Hailing the 1971 Massed Concert as a distinctly exceptional musical event, Sprute pointed out that no effort was being spared to bring together the finest choral music, top area choral voices, and excellent conducting and directing all geared to the production of a remarkable choral musical evening.

Under the chairmanship of William Arendsman, Chorus Concert Committee is composed of Albert G. Hunter Jr. and J. Anthony Hommel, program; William E. Rylance, printing; John W. Hill, Frank Elmendorf and William Lannier, dinner arrangements; E. Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

DEAR MRS. POST: I am donating my body to science when I die. Should there be a funeral, or is it not necessary? What about gathering of friends? Should a meal be served in a restaurant?

DEAR MRS. L: Notify your funeral director immediately that your body it to be donated and where. He will contact the state anatomical committee and possibly the hospital, university or research institute that will receive the body. He will follow special embalming procedures to make the body suitable for scientific study. The body then is prepared in the usual way and may be present at the funeral mass or service.

If your body must be delivered to the hospital immediately, a funeral service may be held without the body, or the family may prefer a memorial service.

The procedures are the same as for any funeral, except there is no trip to a cemetery or crematorium. Close friends usually gather at the home of the deceased or his relatives for refreshments after the service. A meal is not necessary, but if the family wishes to provide one, a meal in the home is preferable to a restaurant dinner.

DEAR MRS. POST: Is it proper to ask for steak sauce at an expensive restaurant after you have ordered a filet mignon?

ANN: The worst that can happen to you is a dirty look from the waiter. Some people may think that using steak sauce is unnecessary with a superior piece of meat, but if you like it, ask for it. After all, the more expensive the restaurant, the harder they should try to please their customers!

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question I receive each week, Mrs. Warren A. Russell, president of the Twentieth Century Club of Kingston, presided at the first meeting of the new year held March 22 at the home of Mrs. James J. Murphy Jr., 255 Pearl Street.

The hostess, Mrs. Murphy, read a paper entitled "What's in a name?" The subject of this paper was a man born illegitimately in England, by name of John Rowlands. Raised in an almshouse, after much ill treatment, he ran away to sea at fifteen. Jumping ship in New Orleans, he had the good fortune to meet and be adopted by a man named Henry Morton Stanley, whose name he took for his own. After serving on first one, then the other side in the War between the States, he became a journalist and was the man chosen by James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald to go to Africa and locate the Scots explorer, David Livingstone, which Stanley did with success. His greeting to the explorer, "Dr. Livingstone, I presume," brought him lasting fame. His last years were spent in England where he was knighted by Queen Victoria. Stanley's career proved that it is ability, not a name, that brings success.

Upstart Villanova Faces UCLA in Finals

HOUSTON (UPI)—One of these years, UCLA is going to lose an NCAA championship. But it doesn't look like 1971 is going to be that year.

The Bruins toyed with Kansas for a little while Thursday night in the semifinals of the NCAA championships, and despite the fact they played a game Coach John Wooden considered disappointing, they still bumped off the Jayhawks 68-60.

That puts UCLA back in the finals once again—this time against the upstart Villanova Wildcats.

Villanova outgassed Western Kentucky 92-89 in the other semifinal game in the cavernous Astrodome in a truly exciting contest that slopped over into two overtimes.

But Villanova, a team with six losses and a surprise victory to this tournament in the first place, will go into the finals Saturday afternoon as the overwhelming underdog.

Wooden, of course, does not see things that way. "What do I think of our chances?" he asked himself. "About the same as Villanova's."

The final game will bring together the most potent front line in college basketball—Sidney Wicks, Steve Patterson and Curtis Rowe—against a team that will have to depend on making the outside shot or else.

"We will play Villanova about the same as we did against Kansas," Wooden said following his club's victory over Kansas. "The things that got us here will be the things we generally go with."

But even Wooden can't ignore the fact he coaches the next thing to a basketball machine.

"I guess when they are shooting well they can compare with any of my other teams," he said.

UCLA's victory over Kansas seemed to be an easy one, and it was surprising to the record-breaking 30,148 persons who filed into the Astrodome to find at game's end the Jayhawks were trailing by only eight points.

"I can't remember when we made so many turnovers (24)," said Wooden. "Our 13 turnovers in the first 20 minutes was very bad, horrible as a matter of fact. Some of those turnovers early in the second half allowed Kansas to briefly tie the game, but during the last 15 minutes of the game the Jayhawks could not find the basket from the outside.

Wicks wound up with 21 points while guard Henry Bibby hit 18 for UCLA and Rowe contributed 16. Kansas center Dave Robisch led his club with 17 points.

The Villanova-Western Kentucky game was the type of contest one would expect to see in a championship tournament.

The game was knotted 74-74 at the end of regulation time after the Hilltoppers' Jerry Dunn missed a chance for victory at the free throw line with four seconds left.

Then the Hilltoppers missed the last shot again in the first overtime period and the score was tied left at 85-85.

Howard Porter's key basket in the final minute and two more free throws finally brought Villanova the victory.

After Western Kentucky's 7-0 center Jim McDaniels fouled out, Villanova 16 A-30,000 Est.

Dunn led Western Kentucky with 25 points while McDaniels had 22. The game's scoring honors, however, was Hank Siemionkowski. He pumped in 31 points before fouling out in the final seconds of regulation play.

It's Tar Heels Against Georgia Tech

NEW YORK (UPI)—It's a tossup whether Paul Hoffman's trip down nightmare alley that cost St. Bonaventure a shot at the National Invitation Basketball Tournament title will be worse than the bad dream Georgia Tech is expected to live through after meeting North Carolina in Saturday's championship game.

Hoffman missed two free throws with no time left in the first overtime Thursday night and Tech went on to beat the Bonnies, 76-71, in a second extra session of their semifinal match. A fast-breaking North Carolina team entered the title bracket by defeating Duke, 73-67, in the other semifinal.

"It's simply nightmarish," said the bespectacled Hoffman after flubbing a chance to win for St. Bonnie. "I usually hit 70-80 per cent of my foul shots

One thing for sure, I can't continue to worry about it."

The NIT, dubbed the tournament of losers because the second bests and conference also-rans received the invitations, is a Cinderella step for Tech, which ran off a 13-1 record at the season's start and then skidded. A fine recovery earned the Engineers a tourney bid.

Tech reached the title round by beating LaSalle, Michigan and the Bonnies. The Engineers next game, however, resurrects memories of an earlier encounter with North Carolina in which the Tar Heels beat Tech by 29 points.

"There's no way on paper we should beat North Carolina," says Tech coach Whack Hyder, "but pressure won the big game for us in this tournament. Maybe if we go into Saturday's game relaxed, we can come out a winner."

Carolina can double and triple team you and does a tremendous job with its height. It's the two platoon system that wears you down."

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith substitutes like there's an endless stream of players clamoring for their letter. He substituted 41 times in Thursday's game with Duke and finally wore down the Blue Devils.

Saturday's meeting marks the first time two Southern teams have met for the NIT title. Tech never actually scored a basket in its second overtime session with the Bonnies. There was one goal-tending call against St. Bonaventure and seven straight Tech foul shots.

The score was tied 59-59 at the end of regulation time and 67-67 after the first extra five-minute period. Jim Thorne led Tech with 27 points and Rich Yunkus added 19 as the Engineers built a bridgehead to a title shot. Carl Jackson paced the Bonnies with 18 before fouling out.

No Retirement for Joe

NEW YORK (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier but I won't fight again this says he will defy the advice of year. If Clay wants a rematch, his friends and advisors to fight I'm willing."

"I don't see no retirement in sight," the 27-year-old Philadelphia said Thursday night, advised him to retire after he successfully defended his title with a 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali on March 8. Only this week, Dr. Edwin Campbell of the New York State Athletic Commission advised his encouragement that Frazier should retire.

After absorbing terrific punishment against Ali, Frazier complained of exhaustion, nausea and vomiting, and headaches. He was admitted to St. Luke's Children's Hospital in Philadelphia where it was revealed he had high blood pressure and a low pulse rate.

He still is a patient at the hospital although, he said, "I and later drove to New York to come and go pretty much as I please." He said he will be discharged on Saturday.

Frazier's first public appearance since his victory over Ali came Thursday at a news conference to announce a title bout between light heavyweight champion Bob Foster and Frazier's friend and sparring partner, Ray Anderson.

Anderson is managed by Frazier's manager Yank Durham and Frazier explained, "I Frazier's contract, has advised promised Yank I'd come. I Frazier to retire. Frazier's come to see Bob and Ray. I feel good, and it gives me great pleasure to be here after my funeral. I just think I was a little tired and needed some rest. It was nothing serious and my blood pressure is almost normal."

However, Dr. Campbell confirmed again Thursday that he thought Frazier had suffered a head injury against Ali. Both fighters have been placed on suspension by the state athletic commission until they undergo complete physical examinations.

Frazier's first day out of the hospital, however, gave all indications of a quick recovery. He chatted for more than a half hour with former champion Floyd Patterson at the hospital, and later drove to New York to attend the press conference and a performance of his band, The Knockouts, at a night spot.

He said he hopes to start a tour with his band in May after he clears the final tests at the hospital and visits his hometown of Beaufort, S.C.

Durham and Frazier's trainer, Eddie Futch, have urged the champion to retire. Bruce Wright, counsel and secretary for Cloverley, Inc., which owns Frazier's contract, has advised Frazier to retire. Frazier's mother and sparring partners have advised him to retire. But Frazier, who must make the final decision, doesn't seem eager to take that step.

FULLY RECOVERED? — Looking none the worse for wear, Heavyweight Champ Joe Frazier sings with his band, The Knockouts, during his visit to an uptown nightspot to watch their performance in New York City last night. Frazier says he will defy the advice of his friends and advisors to fight again. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Ali's New Angle

TEANECK, N. J. (UPI)—Prizelighter Muhammad Ali, predicting he'll win a rematch with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, blames his recent defeat on a penchant for doing the undoable.

"I like to be a miracle man and do what can't be done," Ali told a student audience at Fairleigh Dickinson University Thursday.

He said that was why he clowned around in the 11th round of the championship bout.

"It was a challenge. It was a psychological thing," he said.

"The problem was, it didn't work. I lost two rounds."

He reiterated his claim that he won the most rounds in the 15-round match, during which he failed to regain the heavyweight crown from Frazier.

But, he contended in verse: "Next time there'll be no doubt, For next time he'll be out."

Ali said he was in the "best shape I ever was in" during the Frazier fight, and thus won't be training any harder for a possible rematch.

His speech before some 2,000 students here was on the topic: "The Art of Personality."

'Never Quit'—Floyd

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—"I never retired," said former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson Thursday at Joe Frazier's Cloverly Gym during a workout for his March 29 ten-rounder at the Arena here with Roger Russell.

Patterson's comments came after a visit earlier in the day with the heavyweight titleholder at St. Luke's hospital.

"A lot of people thought I retired when I lost to Ellis. But I was just discouraged," Patterson said. "At 36 years old, as long as your legs hold out and your reflexes are right I can still regain the title I won, lost, and won." Patterson lost to Jimmy Ellis in an elimination bout in Sept. 14, 1968. "The only way for me to regain the championship is to fight at least once a month, which I'm doing right now."

"I was quite disappointed when Oscar Bonavena broke his wrist in Los Angeles," Patterson said. Bonavena's injured wrist prevented a scheduled bout with Patterson earlier this year.

"The only time that I'll retire, and I mean this sincerely, is if I get beat badly. Then I'll retire."

"I visited Joe for 45 minutes today and he offered me the job, which I thought was real nice," Patterson said.

First bout is scheduled at 8:30 p. m.

Kingston Tourney Has Area Hotshots

KINGSTON Sickler's Delivery will take time out from one tournament to open up another when the Rich Amato-coached team meets what will be next year's Ulster County Community College quintet, the Kingston Senators, in first round play of the annual Kingston Basketball Tournament at Municipal Auditorium.

The Dutchmen from Dutchess County play the Roadrunners in the second game following the 7:30 p. m. opener.

Two more games will complete the quarterfinals on April 1. Felicello's Pipers of Marlboro tackle the Rosendale All-Stars and DeMico Motors face the Oreo's.

Sickler's has recently advanced to the semi-finals of the Poughkeepsie YMCA tourney which resumes Wednesday. In the mean time, Amato has brought his forces back across the river to see what the locals have to offer.

Ed Strong, Glenn Berry, and Rod Chando are heading Sickler's which hopes to add the services of Rich Rinaldi, the St. Peter's high scorer who is playing for Savino's in the "Y" affair.

Joe Uhl, Larry Cheatham, Cliff Weeks, and Stan Henderson, when added to the big men, help make Sickler's quite an admirable entry.

Weeks and Gary McDonald are the only members of next year's U-Tri-C quintet not on the Kingston Senators roster. The team is coached by Mike Perry and has Rich DeLosa, Pat Harder, Roger Govantes, and Willis Locke from his Stone Ridge aggregation.

Perry has tossed into this group several of next season's hopefuls. They include John O'Neal of Catskill High School, high scorer in the Capital district; and Dave Edmonds, Walter Lloyd, Charles Johnson, and Steve Semple, all of whom have had New York City high school experience and appear headed for Ulster.

In addition to this group, the Senators will have Ken Hall, star of Hudson Valley Community College, and Bob Vaughn, standout for Columbia-Greene County Community.

Old Man Barnett Shines As Knicks Tumble Hawks

NEW YORK (AP) — In any vote on the player least likely to outflash both Pete Maravich and Walt Frazier, high up on the balloting would be Dick Barnett.

A stoic individual who methodically goes about his job without the slightest change of expression, Barnett normally leaves the heroics to his teammates on the New York Knicks.

But Thursday afternoon was different. Barnett upstaged everyone on the court, including Maravich and Frazier, and while he still didn't crack a smile, he did lead the Knicks to a 112-101 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in their opening playoff game.

While Maravich hit only 9 of 25 shots from the field for Atlanta and Frazier only 7 of 24 for the Knicks from the backcourt, Barnett exploded in the final quarter for 17 of his 20 points and almost single-handedly carried the Knicks from a 90-83 deficit to victory.

The teams play again in Madison Square Garden Saturday night in the best-of-7 game. National Basketball Association quarter-final series.

Baltimore plays at Philadelphia and Chicago at Los Angeles tonight in two other playoff series. Philadelphia and Los Angeles each lead 1-0. The fourth series, between San Francisco and Milwaukee, opens Saturday night at Oakland.

So hot was the 33-year-old guard that he even called his own play. "I asked for the ball a few times and I called my play a few times," he admitted almost sheepishly. "I guess the basket just looked bigger."

Guarding Barnett at first was Walt Hazzard and then Lou Hudson, who had 22 points, one less than Maravich.

Grid Giants Hold Mayor Lindsay to No Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The Lindsay administration's plan to buy and refurbish Yankee Stadium for $24 million has been stopped for no gain, at least temporarily, by the football Giants' refusal to commit themselves to staying in New York.

The City Council's committee against a New Jersey location on state legislation put off action on the proposal until Tuesday after the Giants said Thursday they would weigh the city against a New Jersey location in 1974.

Councilman Matthew J. Troy Jr., D-Queens, the committee chairman, told newsmen action was being deferred because Wellington Mara, president of the Giants, had told him in a phone conversation that the pro football team was committed to Yankee Stadium only for another three years.

"After that he said he would have the luxury of talking to New Jersey or New York and seeing which one offered the better deal," Troy reported.

On Wednesday, New Jersey Gov. William T. Cahill had said the Giants were ready to move to a proposed new stadium in the Hackensack meadowlands.

Mr. Mara is trying to play New Jersey against New York and New York against New Jersey," Deputy Mayor Richard R. Aurelio said. "It's not very gracious in terms of the support New York fans have given him."

Michael Burke, president of the baseball Yankees, said his team was willing to sign a 30-year lease on the stadium if the city buys and refurbishes it regardless of what the Giants, their tenants, do.

Jerry Heard Leads Field

MIAMI (AP) — Jerry Heard, an easy going young man with an unappalable disposition, shrugged off his position as the first-round leader in the $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament.

Asked if he feared the pressure with such formidable veterans as Lee Trevino and Miller Barber lurking just one stroke back going into today's second round, the 23-year-old Heard replied:

"I'll just try to relax, play as well as I can and let happen what will happen."

The husky, good looking young man from Visalia, Calif., had six birdies, no bogeys and needed only 27 putts in recording a six-under-par 66 Thursday on the 6,970-yard Country Club of Miami course.

That gave him a one-stroke margin over Trevino, the defending champion, the dangerous Barber, winner of the Phoenix Open and second to Arnold Palmer on this year's money-winning list, and Hale Irwin. Each had a 67.

A pair of Australian veterans, Bruce Devlin and Bruce Crampton, topped the list for 68. Also at that figure were Frank Beard, Dow Finsterwald, Herb Hooper and Earl Pennell.

South African Gary Player, winner of last week's Greater Jacksonville Open, and Tom Shaw and Carlyle Snead, each a two-time winner this season, were in a large group tied at 69.

Palmer had a 70, and U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin of England was far back with a 72.

Philly Squad Still Alive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Philadelphia Flyers appear virtually assured of a spot in the National Hockey League playoffs.

They battled the Minnesota North Stars to a 2-2 tie Thursday night to take a seven-point lead over Pittsburgh in their drive to land fourth place and the last playoff spot in the West Division.

The Flyers now have 67 points to 60 for the Penguins. To assure themselves of the playoff spot the Flyers need only to win two of their remaining five games.

Detroit snapped a five-game losing streak by shading Vancouver 4-3 and Los Angeles defeated Toronto 5-3 in the other scheduled NHL games.

The Flyers, down 2-0, rallied to tie the Minnesota on goals by Jimmy Johnson and Larry Hillman. Danny Grant and Jude Drouin scored for the North Stars.

Mickey Redmond's goal with 1:34 left to play broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Red Wings their victory over Vancouver.

In YMCA Mid-Hudson Tourney Sickler's Blast Sawyers

POUGHKEEPSIE — Two more teams survived the first round of the annual YMCA basketball tournament here Wednesday night.

Sickler's Delivery of Kingston had little trouble disposing of Saugerties Athletics, 96-60, with six men scoring in double figures. Juick's Five of Spring Valley had a bit tougher time as it topped Hyde Park Inn, 84-77.

Sickler's will meet Juick's and Felicello's Pipers will tangle with SaVino's in semi-final action beginning at 7:15 p.m. on Wednesday.

Paced by former St. Peter's star Ed Strong and UCCC great Glenn Berry, Coach Rich Amato's Kingston quintet ran away from Saugerties early in their contest and never received any serious threats.

Strong and Berry took care of the bulk of the scoring (21 and 18 points respectively), but more importantly controlled both backboards. This gave Rod Chando, another Ulster alumnus, the chance to lead a potent fast-breaking attack for the cat-like Sickler's team.

Saugerties Driver Is Snowmobile Star

BOONSVILLE — Even the sport of snowmobile racing has a world's championship and West Saugerties has one of the top drivers on the circuit.

This was determined recently in this hamlet north of Utica, when Jack Warns, driving a Rupp 400 Magnus, swept to a third place finish in the D Stock Class of 1971's title event.

The 21-year-old graduate of Saugerties High School, a star wrestler and football quarterback in his scholastic days, was finishing his second season as a top-notch snowmobile driver, starting in December and ending last week.

Having qualified for the championships by placing third in the Eastern Division of the United States Snowmobile Association, Warns began the big day in big trouble when he fell off his vehicle during the first heat.

But Jack climbed back on in time to steer himself to a fourth place spot, enabling him to move to the semi-finals.

Dear Abby

Debt-Free Marriage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 years old and have been going with a very nice school teacher for seven years. Myra is 42. We are very much in love and enjoy the same things. I'm sure Myra would make the perfect wife, but here is the problem. She has put it to me cold, either we get married this June or it's good-bye.

Well, I just started a new business and I am in debt. I am the sole support of my invalid mother, a responsibility I will have for as long as she lives. I still owe on my car, and I owe the insurance company because I had to borrow against my policy for the car. I've explained this to Myra and she says it doesn't make any difference to her. She has a good job and is willing to work after we are married.

I still think it would be unfair for me to marry her right now. You're a sensible woman, Abby. Can you help me convince Myra?

FRANK: Sorry, I'm with Myra. If you wait until you are clear and free of debt, you'll be wheeled down the aisle to say your marriage vows. I say, marry the woman. At 44 and 42, time is more important than money.

DEAR ABBY: I have tried for years to convince my husband that if he would give me a compliment once in a while it would mean more to me than material things. His answer, "If I don't like something, you will hear about it." He means it. This goes from the way I made my hair to the way I season the soup. Many times I have about it.

deliberately done something contrary to the way I know he likes it, just to get some kind of reaction out of him. Even a complaint is better than dead silence.

Most people will work better if they get a little praise. Even dogs perform better with an encouraging pat on the head. He hasn't been a "bad" husband. In fact, he's been very good, but a few loving words would have meant the world to me so many times.

Please don't use my name or town. No sense in rocking the boat after 40 years.

NOT APPRECIATED: DEAR NOT: I suppose it's small comfort to be told that actions speak louder than words, but it's true. A man who is stingy with his compliments is usually the product of inhibited parents who weren't able to verbalize their appreciation and approval, so don't blame him too much.

After 40 years, you're wise not to rock the boat. But if you mention it to him, he may change his course.

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried professional woman. I have been going with a widower for several months now and we have a wonderful time together. He lost his wife two years ago but he still wears a wedding ring. I have no objections to that and respect him for his attitude toward his former marriage.

We often dine at fine restaurants and frequently run into people I know; when they stop, I introduce him. If they see his wedding ring, they may conclude that I am out with a married man and am being brassy about it.

Should I ask my friend to remove his ring when we go out? Or should I disregard the thoughts of others?

WEDDING RING: DEAR WEDDING RING: He may have reasons of his own for wearing the ring. Don't mention it.

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice for Lisa, whose husband refused to shave off his beard. My husband also had a beard and I hated it! If it looked good on him I wouldn't have minded, but it looked terrible. I begged him to shave it off. He refused. Well, I just let the hair grow underneath my arms and on my legs. And as fast as it took my hair to grow, that's how long it took him to shave his off!

REVENGEFUL: What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

(Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:20 a.m. WKNY-1490.)

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, March 27

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day and evening to put into operation plans for entertainment or romance. Do those things that show you are wide awake to all kinds of new and advanced courses of action that appeal to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Change that usual Saturday routine and engage in new activities that are far more remunerative now. Delighting close ties is good. Make new friends of real worth.

TARUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Spend this interesting day and evening with congenial friends enjoying pleasures you have in common. Evening good also for a favorite hobby.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have some plan in mind that can be made to work with the assistance of good friends. So contact them early. They will cooperate with you gladly. Enjoy entertainment that is just your cup of tea.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal day to show appreciation to those who have given you much backing in the past, and to impress them with the fact that you are a fine citizen, too. Buy gadgets you need to make work lighter. Forget the unnecessary, though.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being more alert to the opportunities around you is wise right now; be wide awake. Some new friends you have made have the information you need. Get it tactfully and quietly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Any responsibilities you have that bring little benefit should be done away with now. If you outline that new plan to mate, you find you gain the support you want for it quickly. Talk cleverly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show that you will cooperate gladly with individuals who are dynamic and clever. Listen to their suggestions and then join forces in some mutual plan. Start an uprend in all of your affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy on duties in front of you with the cooperation of workers you trust and you will accomplish much today. You need to renew your vitality, and nothing will do it better than enthusiastic work. Relax at hobby tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to spend at whatever amusements most delight you and to perfect some hobby you started some time ago. Forget practical matters for today and take a new lease on life. Show others that you really like them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show kin that you will gladly go along with some plan they have for improvement of home and property. Do some entertaining tonight that can bring worthwhile results. Avoid those who do not really understand you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact that person you want to be allied with in the days ahead where some new plan is concerned. You have fine ideas and can get this person's cooperation easily. Have dinner together in p.m. and celebrate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal day to plan how to have added income in the future without spoiling any present setup. You can settle monetary problems with real ease now. Catch up on personal correspondence tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young people who will have many fine ideas but has a tendency to get them in motion and then turn to something else, so teach constancy of purpose early and then the life here becomes most successful. Otherwise your progeny will be a rolling stone that gathers no moss. However, any profession that requires constant change of action is good, such as acting, buying and selling of property. College only if desired.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

I asked boys to send me their definitions of and comments on "petting." The one that follows is negative. I'll print a positive one soon.

PETTING: (Comment) Petting is the exploitation of physical stimuli for the purpose of erotic pleasure.

As far as dating goes, I feel petting is definitely out. Here are my reasons:

A boy-girl relationship that is not communicating intellectually or spiritually, but just physically, is not true or lasting. Too many kids have to admit there is no reason for them to be together except the physical need for each other.

Too many teen-agers believe physical attraction is an absolute sign of true love. They often think that desire is true love. When a couple have nothing to talk to each other about and start exploring purely physical secrets, they are taking the wrong road.

I think touching others for pleasure or out of desire is wrong. I think petting and full intercourse should be a no-no until after a couple are married.

We should learn to control our desires and to handle our bodies as they should be handled—as temples of God.—Bob.

RAZOR RASH: (Q) After I shave my underarms I get razor bumps or hair bumps or whatever you call them. I splash on alcohol to kill the germs but I still get the bumps. They itch, and sometimes they hurt. I am hairy and have to shave every other day. Can you help me?—Sore in Baltimore, Md.

(A) The alcohol may irritate your skin. Try this method: Shave at bath time. Get good and wet. Use a gentle soap or foam lather. Don't shave too close. Rinse well with cool, clear water. Pat dry. Avoid harsh deodorants for at least 12 hours.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2102, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

Slim Pickings Across Dial

NEW YORK (AP)—If you like collegiate basketball or old James Bond movies, Thursday night was probably a great time to watch television. But the pickings for other entertainment, were slim.

With NBC dedicated to NCAA basketball and CBS to 007, the available menu of new programs was mostly concentrated on ABC, with "Dan August," a drop-out after one season, the most promising network item.

But it turned out to be another of those stories built around freaky young revolutionaries—the kind with the Che Guevara posters on their walls. This time they were mixed up in the killing of a policeman, first of the show's homicides. While the plot was predictable, there was one great stunt by star Burt Reynolds, formerly a stuntman.

The work of science is to substitute facts for appearances. The work of a very expert declarer is to substitute surethings for possibilities. We don't know how a bad player would handle today's contract.

We do know how the near expert would handle it. He will see eight top tricks and a ninth in hearts if West holds both the ace and queen. If not, he can still lead a heart toward dummy and guess correctly, provided that East doesn't hold both missing honors.

Therefore, the near expert will play some diamonds, stopping in his hand, lead a heart toward dummy and hope. If West clatters up with the ace everything will be fine. If West goes into a long huddle and ducks everything will also be fine. However, if West plays low without study, the chances are the near expert will play dummy's jack. The defense will wind up with two hearts and three spades.

The expert goes at the hand in slightly different style. At tricks two and three he plays dummy's ace and king of clubs. East drops the 10 on the second club and now the expert continues with the three of clubs, plays his jack of clubs and makes his ninth trick with the nine spot.

He dropped out of a hovering helicopter onto the back of a man and they rolled into a scuffle.

The schedule for the week-end. However, holds considerable promise. Tonight there is the Easter show of NBC's "Hall of Fame," an adaptation of Paddy Chayefsky's 10-year-old play, "Gideon." This is a rather comic treatment of the Old Testament story. Peter Ustinov is in the title role with Jose Ferrer playing the angel.

Bill Cosby will be on NBC at 8:00 EST Saturday talking to children about the perils of drugs, with help from a cop, a priest and a doctor.

A new Charlie Brown cartoon feature, will appear on CBS Sunday evening, followed on the network by a special starring the singing Osmond Brothers.

Later, on ABC comes the annual Tony Awards show, live from New York. The program will present bits from stage hits and other seasons along with passing out statues.

Cairo Editor Sees Another Conflict

WATCHFUL EYES — An Israeli soldier keeps watch on the Egyptians on the other side of the canal near the Firdan Bridge. In Tel Aviv, the Israeli Minister of Tourism, Moshe Kol, revived reports Thursday of a possible arrangement to get the canal open. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

By United Press International
The editor of the semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said today another war in the Middle East is inevitable. Mohamed Hassanein Heikal said in his weekly column a new war "will be long, fierce and complicated, but we have no alternative to accept its risks."

He said "war with Israel is inevitable now" because of Israel's expansionist policies and its refusal to leave room for diplomatic action that could lead to peace.

Heikal added that Egyptian strategy has been to involve the Soviet Union in the Middle East in an effort to offset any intervention on behalf of Israel by the United States or Britain. As a result, he said, "the Soviet Union now finds itself in a similar situation to 1956" when Moscow warned Britain and France it would intervene militarily unless they withdrew troops from Egypt.

Meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad flew to Rome to launch a new offensive aimed at winning Western European diplomatic support for Egyptian policies. While in Rome he will meet with Italian government leaders and with Yugoslavia's President Tito, there on an official visit. From there Riad goes to Paris to head a conference of Egypt's ambassadors in Western Europe, and to see French government officials.

In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers met Thursday with members of the Senate to brief them on Nixon administration policies in the Middle East.

Blacks Caucus With Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen months after it was first requested, 13 black congressmen got a meeting with President Nixon Thursday. They described the hour-and-a-half discussion as fruitful.

"I did find him sympathetic to the presentation we made," given.

Among other things, the caucus asked for "continued productive liaison" with President Nixon. Their 60 specific recommendations included:

- Creation of 1.1 million productive public service jobs within a year.
- A $6,500 guaranteed yearly income for a family of four.
- Disengagement from Southeast Asia "preferably by the end of 1971, and definitely within the life of the 92nd Congress."

—Drastic cutbacks in military spending, with the savings plowed back into domestic programs.

- Doubling economic aid to Africa, with the United States taking the lead in "isolating the Republic of South Africa, the world's most racist nation."

Diggs said the President "made his personal commitment" to follow up the recommendations, and that to continue communication with the caucus.

President Urges A Dismantling

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon asked Congress Thursday to dismantle seven big executive departments and replace them with four giant executive departments in the interest of governmental efficiency.

He would establish new Departments of Community Development, Human Development, Natural Resources and Economic Affairs to take over the work of the Labor, Commerce, Transportation, Agriculture, Interior, Housing and Urban Development and Health, Education and Welfare Departments.

The existing departments of State, Justice, Treasury and Defense would continue practically unchanged. The present post office, as provided by law last year, becomes a federally chartered corporation later in 1971.

Young Victims Of Kidnapings Are Released

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two young victims of separate kidnap incidents were free and unharmed today after the parents of one paid a $5,000 ransom and the father of the second met a demand for removal of four nude photographs from an art gallery.

The victims were Michael J. Register, 11, of Macon, Ga., who was held in handcuffs for nearly 20 hours while his parents arranged the ransom, and Richard E. Bates, 13, son of an official of the gallery in Memphis, Tenn.

Problem Of Organization
Even before Nixon formally outlined his plan, skeptics in and out of Congress were asking how the creation of even bigger federal bureaucratic anthills would make it easier—as the President has suggested—for the average citizen to deal with the government or help officials get results from the programs they are running.

Nixon's argument—expressed in his own speeches and messages and the explanations of his aides—is that the federal government suffers more from bad organization than size.

To illustrate what he called "bad mechanism," Nixon gave some examples of rampant duplication and overlapping.

"Gunite, Frank." "Gunite, David."

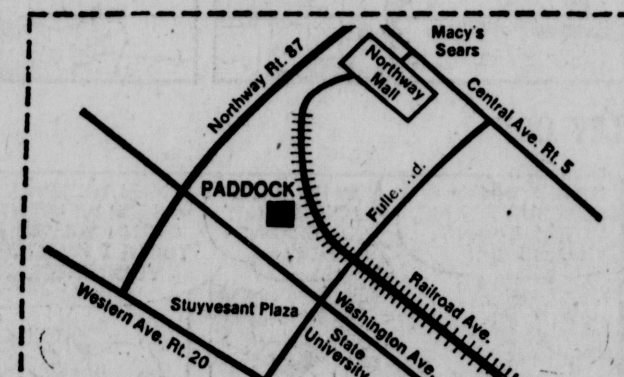

You're beginning to hear it everywhere. Gunite. Because every day, more and more people discover that a Gunite pool is the best kind of pool you can own.

Why? It's strong, it's permanent, it's beautiful. Gunite is concrete applied under pressure, over steel reinforcement.

Paddock, the pool builder that builds only Gunite pools, will guarantee yours for as long as you own it. And now, if you can afford an in-ground pool, you can afford the best. You can have a full-size Paddock Gunite pool in the $4,000 range.

Don't buy any pool until you've talked to a Paddock technical representative. He'll give you plenty of hard facts, without any hard sell, without any cost or obligation.
